- HDFC Flexi Cap Fund (80 holdings)
- Nippon India Large Cap Fund (58 holdings)
- Common holdings (38 holdings)

Mira's take

These two funds have a 38% overlap, primarily in large cap names like HDFC Bank, Reliance Industries and ICICI Bank. If you already hold HDFC Flexi Cap Fund, adding Nippon India Large Cap Fund may not significantly improve diversification. Consider a mid or small cap fund to reduce overlap.

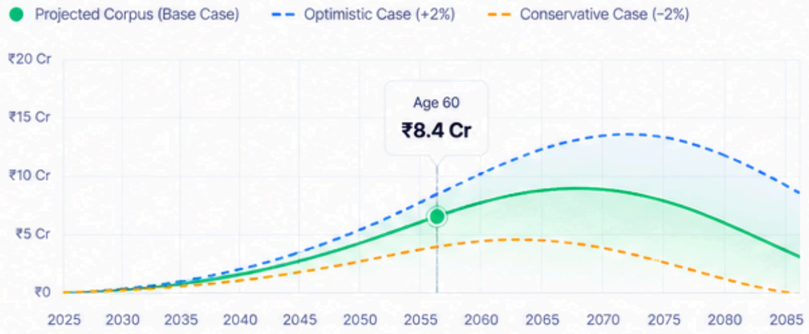
Projected Retirement Corpus

Today's value

You are on track

Based on your current investments and expected returns, you are projected to have a corpus of ₹8.4 Cr at age 60, which can support your expected expenses until age 85.



Corpus at 60	Monthly Income (Age 60+)	Total Expenses (25 years)	Surplus / (Shortfall)
₹8.4 Cr	₹2.3 L	₹10.8 Cr	₹1.6 Cr
(Today's value)	(Today's value)	(Today's value)	(Today's value)

Insights from Mira

- You are on track to meet your retirement goal with a projected surplus of ₹1.6 Cr.
- Your current savings rate of 32% is healthy.
- Increasing your equity allocation by 5–10% could improve your corpus by ~18%.
- Consider reducing discretionary expenses by 10% to create an additional buffer.
- A higher-than-expected inflation (8%) could reduce your corpus by ~27%.
- Review your plan every 2–3 years or when there is a major life change.

Quick Actions

- Try an optimistic scenario — See the impact of higher returns
- Try a conservative scenario — See the impact of lower returns
- Adjust monthly expenses — How does spending more or less affect your plan?
- Add other income sources — Include pension, rental income, etc.

Key Insights from Mira

- Your portfolio fell 28.4% at the lowest point, compared to Nifty 50 falling 38.0%.
- Diversification helped reduce the impact, with gold and fixed income providing stability.
- You recovered to pre-crash levels in 5 months, faster than the Nifty 50 (8 months).
- Your Indian equity allocation (42%) was the largest contributor to the drop.
- Having 5–10% in gold or high-quality debt can help reduce volatility during such events.
